Pack up the mini van and head for Cape May County, New Jersey

It's time to plan a vacation and everyone in the family has a different idea about what to do. Mom and Dad want to go somewhere to relax, enjoy a cultural experience, take in the excitement and glamour of the casinos and, possibly, even spend a day on the links. The kids, well, they want to play golf, too- the miniature kind- and they definitely want to visit a theme park and a zoo. Plus, everyone in the family thinks a vacation isn't really a vacation without a trip to the beach.

If this sounds like your vacation wish list, then pack up the mini van and head for Cape May County and discover the treasures at New Jersey's southern-most county.

Situated between the Atlantic Ocean and Delaware Bay, Cape May County, New Jersey — referred to as the Jersey Cape—invites visitors to enjoy the natural beauty, pristine beaches, picturesque bays and waterways. The area is the Garden State's southern peninsula which naturally lends itself to watersports, fishing and boating.

Boredom is not an option and relaxation is a choice on a vacation here. An entire vacation could be spent sunning and splashing on any of the pristine beaches from Ocean City south to Cape May Point. The beaches along the Jersey Cape vary, from quiet, out-of-the-way strands to vast and busy beaches crowded with families enjoying the sand and surf.

Nowhere else will you find a place like a South Jersey Boardwalk that excites the senses quite the way they do here. Spinning, zipping, reeling rides offer thrills and chills that every kid and "kid at heart" has to experience at least once. Beside the rides, there are several outstanding water parks on the Boardwalks in Ocean City and Wildwood that always delight.

If you like to shop in more intimate locations, stop by the quaint specialty stores which line downtowns in the communities of Cape May, Stone Harbor and Ocean City.

Dining out in Cape May County is as diverse as its landscape. Grazing along on the area's Boardwalks will immerse you in America's fun foods including hot dogs, pizza, cheese steaks, ice cream and funnel cake.

Dubbed the "the Restaurant Capital of New Jersey" by The New York Times, the historic landmark City of Cape May combines the attraction of Victoriana with wonderful local ingredients and fresh seafood to create a delicious dining experience.

History isn't boring in Cape May County with living history attractions and gift shops that provide a glance into the world of yesteryear. Historic Cold Spring Village is a 19th century open-air museum in Cape May where costumed interpreters bring the crafts, sights, sounds, and aroma of the Age of Homespun to life.

Finally, the allure of Cape May County, New Jersey is created through hundreds of special events that range from kiting, beauty pageants, music, volleyball, marbles and more.
